Summary – Review and Monitoring

The improvement process is designed to be a continual cycle of data collection, analysis, and response. Strategies are implemented and results are examined. In response to the data, goals or strategies are reviewed and may be revised or adjusted to influence improvement as any need to do so is identified.

The Superintendent assumes primary responsibility for reviewing and monitoring the improvement process, delegating responsibilities for actions steps to division and school level staff, and presenting progress reports to the school board.

While an annual review is a minimum requirement, most action steps are expected to be implemented throughout the school year and a formal report will be presented at the end of each school year.

The Comprehensive Plan will be formally reviewed and updates made biennially – in those years ending in an odd number.
